VISION

To be one of the best faculties of fourth generation universities in the fields of education, scientific research and community services, like its counterparts in prestigious international universities.

MISSION

To provide the latest educational, research and community services in the fields of economics, statistics, political science, public administration and socio computing in accordance with the requirements of the era of the Fourth Industrial Revolution using distinguished human resources, modern technological methods, and established development partnerships to meet the needs of the labor market and the requirements of sustainable development.

Historical Background

- Established in 1959 by the Presidential Decree No. 1911
- Modelled as London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE), which is considered the academic benchmark for FEPS.

- The first academic year of FEPS started in 1960/1961, aiming to provide Egypt and the Arab countries with highly qualified scholars and professionals in the fields of Economics, Statistics and Political Sciences.

- Post graduate studies started in 1965-1966, qualifying for Masters and Ph.D. in one of the three major specializations. While post graduate diplomas started in 1973-1974.
- FEPS Students get a bachelor degree in one of these three specializations after the completion of at least three years and half of study.

- In 1990, two new academic departments opened: Public Administration and Socio-Computing department).
- Post graduate studies started for these two departments in the school year 1990- 1991.
- In 1993, the minor specialization was introduced
